On Sale To-day A Large Lot Fine New Silks

1-3 to Nearly 1-2

A Third to Nearly a Half

Less Than Regular Prices.

Don't confuse the Silks in this sale with the usual lot of indifferent quality, bad patterns, colors, &c., usually picked up at auction sales—our word for it, they are bright, fresh, new, high-class goods from the best mills. Every piece was selected by our representative because of its quality, coloring, and real worth.

With the coming in of Clinging Gowns—the Directoire vogue—silks will play an important part in the season's favored fabrics. We feel that we are particularly fortunate to be able to offer you these silks here at the very beginning of the season so far underpriced.

Returning buyers from Paris tell us that armure is the favored silk for millinery, dress trimmings, &c. Note that this silk, which Paris, the Criterion of Fashion, has approved of, is well represented in this sale.

Included are armures, taffetas, and chiffon taffetas, in black, white, copenhagen blue, red, plum, gray, tan, brown, castor, gun metal, green, old rose, reseda, green-and-blue plaids, self-stripes, and changeable effects.

The likeness is the result of much research and study on the part of the sculptor, who was guided principally by an engraving of the general preserved in an official document which he had the opportunity of sketching in the National Library in Paris. Count de Rochambeau's face, with its firm chin and strong features, impresses the observer with his soldierly qualities. The uniform is that of a French general of the period. PERFUME STICKS IN FASHION.

The day of pastilles has come back. It was to be expected along with barbaric jewelry, wonderful embroideries, and artificial in every department of life.

There are many women who have always used these perfume sticks, or pastilles, to scent apartments, but the common use of them goes in and out of fashion.

Sometimes they are used to fumigate a room in which there is sickness, or one that has been tightly closed up for some time, or one in which the walls and carpets are moldy.

A French perfumer has invented an aromatic stick for scenting apartments. It has a penetrating aroma of vanilla which quickly pervades the air. This is a gentle stimulant, and most people like it.

It is usually known as a flavoring for food, but it really has a tonic value and is healthful as well as agreeable in a sick room.

In some countries a bit of vanilla is put in the tea, and in London there is a vanilla is incorporated. The odor is delicious that floats out from the clay when the teapot is heated.

There is a pastille used for fumigating which is made of powdered charcoal and an aromatic substance. It comes in

NATIONS TAKE PART

Preparing for International Tuberculosis Congress.

PRIZES ARE NOW CLASSIFIED

Money Awards Headed by the Hodgkins Fund Prize of $1,500, Offered by the Smithsonian Institution for Best Treatise on "Relation of Atmospheric Air to Tuberculosis."

Preparations for the International Congress on Tuberculosis, to be held in the new National Museum, Washington, September 21 to October 12, are engaging the attention of enlightened nations.

Here in Washington, those connected with the congress are as busy as bees. Matter concerning the daily programme of the convention is being prepared and sent to the printers. Getting up advance copies of the many papers to be read on the subject of tuberculosis, is giving the press agents, copy-readers, and directors of the congress plenty of work. The work of classifying prizes to be awarded has been finished.

Many Prizes Awarded.

With the view of stimulating effort along special lines, the central committee has decided to award prizes and testimonials for meritorious exhibits. These awards will be money prizes, medals, and diplomas, in accordance with the recommendations of the committee on prizes, of which Dr. Charles J. Hatfield is chairman. In addition to the awards to be made by the congress, a special prize of $1,500 is offered by the Smithsonian Institution. The list follows:

The Hodgkins Fund Prize of $1,500, offered by the Smithsonian Institution for the best treatise on the "Relation of Atmospheric Air to Tuberculosis."

A prize of $1,000 for the best evidence of effective work in the prevention or relief of tuberculosis, by any voluntary association, since the last international congress in 1896.

A prize of $1,000 for the best exhibit of an existing sanatorium for the treatment of curable cases of tuberculosis among the working classes.

A prize of $1,000 for the best exhibit of a hospital for the treatment of advanced pulmonary tuberculosis.

A prize of $1,000 for the best exhibit of a dispensary or kindred institution for the treatment of the tuberculous poor.

A prize of $1,000 for the best exhibit of a furnished house for a family or group of families of the working class, designed in the interest of the crusade against tuberculosis.

Gold and Silver Medals.

Besides the money prizes, gold and silver medals and certificates of award are offered in each of the instances named.

Medals and diplomas are also offered:

To the society which gives evidence of having the largest membership in relation to tuberculosis.

For exhibits of the most effective plans for raising money for the crusade against tuberculosis.

For the best exhibits of a passenger car designed in the interest of the crusade against tuberculosis.

For the best plans for the employment of arrested cases of tuberculosis.

Small Coins. This is a delightful aroma to be let loose in a close room.

Charcoal of linden or willow wood mixed with oils of lavender, cloves, cinnamon, thyme, caraway, and geranium makes a most agreeable compound. A druggist will know how to put them together.

Fumigating ribbons have also come into fashion. These are made by taking fine flat lamp wicks dipped into a solution of saltpeter and dried, then soaked in aromatic tinctures.

This wick is put into a lamp burner, which may be arranged in any ornamental bowl or special device which will hold it for this purpose. After being lighted, the flame is blown out and the wick will smolder, throwing off a subtle incense.

In addition to all these methods of perfuming rooms, there has come a way of perfuming one's garments that is far more lasting than any amount of sachet.

A fine piece of chamomile is used, dipped in all manner of Old World extracts, then left to dry, and later cut into pieces and covered with brocade or silk ribbon.

These bits are slipped into each bureau drawer and on the shelves of closets and in the compartments of the writing desk. Often a piece is kept under the blotting paper or the writing pad.

These pieces of perfumed chamomile are not cheap, and although the formula for preparing them has been given out, it is quite tedious and expensive to follow.
